The Style Invitational
WEEK 63: BAD ABOUT YOU

Using only the letters in the famous name of a serial killer, create a name for a country or a city. You do not have to use ALL the letters in the killer's name. Example: John Wayne Gacy—Ghana

Name an amusing celebrity and the planet you would send him or her to. Examples: Roseanne Arnold, Saturn. Ross Perot, Pluto.

Come up with a funny caption for either of these photographs.

Now, don’t jump to conclusions. This Week’s Contest was suggested by the literally hundreds of you who keep writing in with stupid ideas for new contests. We’re not going to respond to these ideas because it would run a contest to come up with a lame idea for a new Style Invitational contest, an idea destined to create uniform results. You must give at least one example. Find-a-potato winner gets a fancy belonging, featuring the likeness of Marilyn Monroe on the upper-curve scalpel. It is available at this is not an original Battelli, though we have obtained it for $50 from highly reputable art dealers who specialize in old, rare, and particularly vicious Style Invitational items. Government permit is required. Honoroble mentions will get a slick new style Battelli tumbler sketchers. Winners will be selected on the basis of humor and originality. Mail your entries to the Style Invitational, 63 Wellesley St. Cambridge, MA. 02138. Or you can email us at style.invitational@vicinity.com. Entries must consist of at least 80 words. Please include your address and phone number. Winners will be announced in three weeks. No purchase necessary. Employee of The Washington Post and their immediate families are not eligible for prizes.
