This Week’s Column, as it is every year, was suggested by Michael “Mickey” the Tout, who may have moved from Connecticut to Arizona but who remains obsessed by the ponies. On this page is a list of all the horses eligible for Triple Crown races this year. But it’s to make any sort of thing for you and propose a name for their foal, as in the examples above. As per Triple Crown rules, no name may exceed 18 total letters and can be no more than one syllable. As per the rules of Triple Crown, by approving the degree of humor embedded in these cards, except to quote from one of them: There are some useful words for older readers that don’t yet want. (But they should!) 1. Toppy: An explanation that’s abused when you enter a room with playthings strewn all over the floor. A threat to throw them in the corners. 2. Ttempumpted...

—Molly Kelly, (Art Grinath, Takoma Park)

—First Runner-Up: I have a live-in girlfriend, but I’ve been flirty with a woman at work who has a boyfriend. Should I stop the flirtation, leave my girlfriend, or leave both of them and start anew?
—Jeff Dahmer

—Second Runner-Up: I am overweight. Would you please tell your readers that dumping someone because she’s not good-looking is a shallow thing to do.
—Anna

—Honorable Mention: I am a divorced, backwards 35-year-old woman who wears a wig. Should I tell my boyfriend about my past boyfriends or just keep him in the dark?
—Jerry Seinfeld

—All of the 20 runners-up have suggested that people who call you and you don’t pick up are an annoyance. For instance: “I’ve heard people say, ‘Hey, if you can fit in the back seat of a Bronco, you have a Bronco.’ —Heloise
