This Week's Contest: Bob Staake has just learned some astonishing news. But since he is an artist, he is liberating and can't tell you in words. So he is going to try to communicate through cartoons. Yes, you too are also a very good artist. Are you doing a very good job? Can you tell what news he is trying to pass on? Choose one or more. First-prize winner will be announced, Sunday, Dec. 21. Second prize will be awarded, Monday, Dec. 22. Third prize will be announced, Wednesday, Dec. 24. The contest is open to everyone, regardless of age or country, but you must be 18 years or older. You can submit only one entry online per week. Entries may be edited for text or content. Entries will be published in print only if they are suitable for distribution in a newspaper. First prize winner will receive a $100 gift certificate. There is no purchase required for entry. Employees of The Washington Post and their families are not eligible for prizes. Pseudonymous entries will be disqualified. You may not submit more than one entry per person per contest. Entries become the property of The Washington Post. Losers@washpost.com. U.S. mail entries are no longer accepted. Contests will be run one per week, unless otherwise announced. Losers@washpost.com. U.S. mail entries are no longer accepted. Contests will be run one per week, unless otherwise announced. Losers@washpost.com.