John Grisham's Autograph, on an Angry Letter

LATER, D2

The Style Invitational

John Grisham's Autograph, on an Angry Letter

The Now Laser Magnets

have the latest generations of Laser Magnets on the market. Our magnets are made with the finest materials and have beentested for over 150,000 hours underthe harshest conditions. We are soconfident in our products that weoffer a lifetime warranty on all of ourproducts. Our magnets are perfect forhanging photos, notes, or otherimportant documents.

LETTER, D2

The Washington Post

2006, Tribune Media Services

ILUSTRATIONS BY BOB STAAKE FOR THE WASHINGTON POST

Call for Entries: Spelling Bee 2006

The Daily Mirror of South Carolina

B R I D G E

Frank Street

North

By Howard Baker, Columbus

FOOLING IN THE BLANKS

CARTOON C

Cartoon C.

D2 BLACK

D2 BLACK

D2 BLACK

D2

cartoonist's bit of buffoonery."

This month's theme: "Blood"

The story was set for publication in the May 15 issue of The Washington Post, but the editor was delayed in sending the proofs to the printer. When the proofs were finally ready to be printed, the editor noticed that the cartoons were missing. The cartoons had been sent to the printer by mistake, and the editor was too late to make any corrections.

The editor was furious and sent a letter to the cartoonist, Howard Baker, expressing his frustration. The letter read:

"Dear Howard,

I am writing to express my极度不满意 about the missing cartoons in the May 15 issue of The Washington Post. As you know, the cartoons were set for publication in this issue, but they were not included.

I understand that the mistake was made by the printer, but I am still disappointed that the readers of the Post were deprived of your wonderful cartoons. Your work is always original and entertaining, and I believe that the readers of the Post would have enjoyed these cartoons as well.

Please let me know if there is anything else I can do to help resolve this issue. I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

[Editor's Name]"

The editor was pleased with the response he received from Howard Baker. He wrote back:

"Dear [Editor's Name],

Thank you for your letter. I understand your frustration about the missing cartoons. While I cannot take responsibility for the printer's mistake, I appreciate your understanding.

I am pleased to know that readers of The Washington Post enjoy my work. It is always exciting to hear that people appreciate my art.

Please let me know if there is anything else I can do to assist you.

Sincerely,

[Cartoonist's Name]"

The editor was satisfied with the response and thanked Howard Baker for his understanding. He decided to include the cartoons in the next issue of The Washington Post, and the readers were happy to see them.

The Style Invitational

The Style Invitational is a popular writing competition that takes place every year. The competition is open to all writers, and the winner is crowned the "Style Invitational Champion" for that year.

This year's theme is "Blood," and the entries are due by November 30. The winner will be announced in the New Year's Day issue of The Washington Post.

The Style Invitational is a fun and creative way for writers to showcase their skills. It is a great opportunity to have your work featured and to compete against other talented writers.

If you are interested in participating in this year's Style Invitational, please visit the Style Invitational website for more information.