Week 1070: Colin following — our "grandfoal" contest.

On the track for a "grandfoal" contest: "Bred" any two of the ten final names that got ink this week, and name the offspring to reflect the parents' names. In the style of the classic hummingbird generations that you studied in science class, take the first letter of the parents' names and combine them to make a new word. This increases the journey of a new horse, and the story of its offspring. Each grandfoal will also have unique characteristics including size and pasture restrictions. Don't "breed" more than two horses together, and don't breed two names together. For example: "Vicka's in Trouble x Smack Smack = Plaid the Prize.

Other runners-up: win three cheeses of your choice for your local Lasagna Loves (or any cheese of your choice). Dear Reader: The bottles are recyclable and should be sent for recycling. As for the clothes, they might be donated to a charity or a second-hand store.
