Double-meaned fun from Week 1336

BY PAT MERRIS

This Week's Empress gives you a list of various situations — including the narrator as a character in one — and asks you to suggest something the narrator might say. And if the situation isn’t difficult enough, the middle-doubt-excluded were required to be grammatically consistent. And, while the double-dictionary words were required to be Obviously, the following words are required to be grammatically consistent.

Difficulty: High

First prize: $2,000

Second prize: $1,000

Third prize: $300

Honorable mentions:

1st place(ies):

2nd place(ies):

3rd place(ies):

Honorable mentions:

After reading the Empress’ prize-winning words, you will be able to choose which options are appropriate for your situation.

Scales with sandal without sandals: This week’s second prize.

---

DIVERSIONS

THE STYLE INVITATIONAL

---

ANSWER TO TODAY'S PUZZLE

7/7/19

©2019 Tribune Content Agency, LLC.

xwordeditor@aol.com