In closing: Oratorical flourish meaning "I will now speak 15 more minutes." (Bob Staake/For The Washington Post)

“In closing”: Oratorical flourish meaning “I will now speak 15 more minutes.” (Peter Metrinko)

Global warming: Leftist plot to destroy Americans’ God-given right to destroy. (Mark Naimark)

Historical revisionism: Now the past has been torched by a new generation. (Phil Frankenfeld)
The Empress can’t quite believe it, either, but The Style Invitational has reached Week 1200 and we’re still here. We’ll commemorate it in our time-honored way: by ripping off an earlier contest. This week: Supply a word, name or multi-word term along with a wry definition or description; together, the term and description must total exactly 12 words, as in the examples above from Week 860 in 2010, when we asked for the same thing, but with the definition exactly 10 words. Two words joined with a hyphen will count as two words. Use an existing term; don’t make up a neologism.

Winner gets the Inkin’ Memorial, the Lincoln statue bobblehead that is the official Style Invitational trophy. Second place receives this adorable crocheted olive-green ski mask with a multitude of crocheted tentacles curling below the eye holes, a la Cthulhu of H.P. Lovecraft or perhaps an Ood of “Doctor Who.” Donated by John “Ed” Edwards of Surrey, England.

Other runners-up win their choice of a yearned-for Loser Mug, the older-model “This Is Your Brain on Mugs” mug or our Grossery Bag, “I Got a B in Punmanship.” Honorable mentions get one of our lusted-after Loser magnets, “Magnet Dum Laude” or “Falling Jest Short.” First Offenders receive a smelly tree-shaped air “freshener” (FirStink for their first ink). Deadline is Monday night, Nov. 14; results published Dec. 4 (online Dec. 1). You may submit up to 25 entries per contest. See general contest rules and guidelines at wapo.st/InvRules. The “Split Hars” headline for this week’s results is by Danielle Nowlin; the honorable-mentions subhead is by William Kennard. SPLIT HARS: WINNING ‘HYPHEN THE TERRIBLE’ NEOLOGISMS FROM WEEK 1196

In Week 1196, one of our recurring “Hyphen the Terrible” contests, we asked the Greater Loser Community to look through the pages of The Post or another publication for hyphens between two words or within a word (often when a word breaks at the end of a line), and then combine either side of the hyphen with either side of another hyphenated term. The neologisms below are mostly from The Post, though entrants also curled up with line endings from a host of other rags, among them the Hartford Courant, the Boston Globe, the Maryland Independent, the Martinsburg (W.Va.) Journal, the Boone, N.C., Mountain Times and, not to be forgotten, the West Plains (Mo.) Daily Quill. Vive small papers — long may they hyphenate.

4th place

(hem-orrhoid + mem-oir) Memoir: A life story that comes to a painful end. (Lawrence McGuire, Waldorf, Md.)

3rd place

(hill-sides + Clin-ton) Hillton: A hotel where your efforts to check into it are always thwarted by the lady behind the desk. (Jeff Contompasis, Ashburn, Va.)

and the Donald Talking Pen:

(miscon-duct + con-tinued) Miscontinued: Dug a hole and kept digging. “Despite warnings from aides, the nominee miscontinued his sexist remarks.” (Duncan Stevens, Vienna, Va.)
